The Years Before School Vivian Edmiston Todd, Helen Heffernan, 1977 Abstract: Educators specializing in early childhood education are increasingly aware that a Projection-type philosophy is needed in the field. Such a philosophy would include: teaching a child to learn at the conscious level; paralleling instructional and learning theory; facilitating individual motivation by learning experiences with peers and adult guidance; use of preschool teaching to eliminate problems--scholastic, behavioral, and emotional--and the need for remedial programs later in the educational process; and awareness that girls as well as boys need a preschool foundation for whatever career and life-style they may choose. Preschool programs are increasingly important to families that are nuclear rather than extended and where the mother works more often than not. Preschool programs should aid in the eventual development of a just, humanistic person who is able to deal happily and successfully with problems that may arise in his family or his society.
